1. The former Russian-owned transport firm Derutra, located in East Berlin, Brunnenstrasse 186, has apparently been returned to German ownership, along with the former Russian-owned SAG enterprises. 1/ As of 11 January 1954, there were no Russian officials in the former Derutra offices, and the firm is now to be known as Deutra. There still has not been time to repaint the name plates on trucks and other vehicles formerly operated by the Russians as Derutra, so that although the new headquarters has already changed the name plate on the building, the trucks are still operating with the old Derutra signs painted on them.
2. The new German owned and managed Deutra Transport Company occupies the same office as its Russian predecessor firm.

Comment. Derutra was included in the East German press in the list of SAG's to be returned to East German control on 1 January 1954.
